Hong Kong, April 6th, 2011 — The Asian Banker Promising Young Banker awards were announced today in a ceremony in Hong Kong. An exclusive audience of top global industry leaders witnessed the award ceremony for 15 of the top professionals under the age of 40 in the Asia Pacific and Gulf region, as well as their institutions, who received The Asian Banker Talent and Leadership Development Award. The Promising Young Banker award acknowledges bankers under the age of 40 who have shown leadership within their organisations and communities, recognising individuals who manage staff of significant size and run profitable businesses. The gala was attended by 200 guests from 20 banks, who took home 25 awards.

“With our Promising Young Banker awards programme we are identifying the next generation of leaders of Asia Pacific financial institutions,” says Peter Hoflich, Managing Editor of The Asian Banker. “People are banks’ key assets, and we believe that recognising the bankers that are making their mark, as well as the banks that make talent development a key prerogative by attracting and training the best managers, is an important step in establishing which institutions have true long-term vision.”

The award ceremony was held in conjunction with The Asian Banker Summit, the largest gathering of financial services professionals in the Asia-Pacific region. The Summit is held annually in different Asian cities, and this year’s was held in Hong Kong with the full support of the Hong Kong Association of Banks.

- The strong leadership in the financial services industry provided by BankMuscat's Abdullah Al Hinai is recognised as being among the top in the region; BankMuscat wins Talent and Leadership Development award.

Abdullah Al Hinai, assistant general manager, investment banking, BankMuscat, has been with BankMuscat since graduating from Boston University in 1996, and has risen in the ranks, taking on ever greater responsibilities and eventually being entrusted with helping the bank set up the Muscat Capital brokerage unit in Saudi Arabia, where he also functions as the subsidiary's CEO. With responsibilities that cover corporate finance and advisory, brokerage, equity research and proprietary investment functions, Al Hinai manages 40 staff in three countries, and sits on several key bank management committees. He has been cited by bank CEO Abdul Razak Ali Issa as having "extraordinary leadership skills that create an environment that draws the very best from his team."

For its outstanding support of this exemplary young banker, and for providing him with the training and support to actualise his potential, BankMuscat has been awarded The Asian Banker Talent and Leadership Development Award. BankMuscat has taken a calculated risk by entrusting its young staff with significant responsibilities that has paid off for both the bank, and Al-Hinai.

• International jury uses comprehensive selection criteria

The Asian Banker Promising Young Banker Awards programme assesses the achievements of leaders in contributing to strong and sustainable financial institutions in the region. The award is part of The Asian Banker's commitment to promote the importance of leadership in the development of a sound and sustainable financial services industry.

1. Candidates must be under 40 years of age and currently working in a financial institution or a regulatory agency in any capacity.
2. Candidates can be recommended for these awards strictly only by their chairmen, CEOs or board members in the form of a letter of recommendation to The Asian Banker.
3. All institutions can submit recommendations for more than one candidate. It is also possible for more than one candidate to win this award from any institution.
4. Serving CEOs who are under the age of 40 can also be considered for this award.
5. The letter of recommendation and/or its supporting documents must provide very specific statements on the following three areas:
 - a. The candidate's performance in recent roles or projects given to them, with a clear statement of how the candidate made a tangible contribution to the bottom line of the business or operation.
 - b. The management's assessment of the candidate's (i) all-round skills; (ii) instincts to building sustainable businesses; (iii) vision; (iv) perception of peers; and (v) other roles and factors in his or her career that qualifies the candidate for leadership positions in the future.
 - c. The candidate's likely or logical specific career trajectory as seen by the board or the person making the recommendation.

The Selection Process

The selection process began in early 2011 with calls for submissions sent to the CEOs, Chairmen and Presidents of all of the leading banks in the region. The nominated candidates were subject to further scrutiny through interviews with third parties, including local banking journalists and analysts who have had contact with the candidates, peers and third party reviews. The short-listed candidates were then submitted for a review by the board of advisors, based on a comparative evaluation done by the research team.
